Area Post Offices Close Tomorrow

BARRING a last-minute change in Federal orders Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg post offices will be closed Saturdays beginning tomorrow.

Other changes involved in new Post Office Department rules pending more appropriations from Congress:

1 — All city, village and rural delivery service will be discontinued on Saturdays effective tomorrow. Special delivery messenger service is not affected.

2 — Beginning Monday, April 29, no third class mail will be accepted by post offices. Only ex-

Delay In Deliveries

SATURDAY'S edition of The Daily Record will be delivered to mail subscribers on Monday together with the Monday edition, according to the new regulation.

Receptions to this rule will be medicines, serums, drugs and medical supplies.

3 — Window service at the local post offices will begin at 8:30 a.m. and end at 5 p.m. daily beginning Monday, April 15.

4 — Effective Monday, April 29 money orders will no longer be issued in first and second class post offices. They may be obtained at third and fourth class post-offices, however.

According to Fred Rhodes, Stroudsburg postmaster, persons and business firms with lock-boxes will be able to pick up sorted mail Saturday even though windows will not be open.

Rhodes said that early morning mail will be sorted by 8:30. Users of the post offices in the two boroughs will be able to enter the buildings and drop mail in letter or packages slots but there will be no direct services offered during Saturdays or Sundays.

Action in closing local post offices is being taken in compliance with orders from Postmaster General Summerfield.

Distribution of mail within the post office itself will be restricted (on weekends) to first-class mail and daily newspapers only.

All "outgoing mail" will be dispatched promptly, according to Summerfield. Incoming mail "will be ready for carrier delivery on Monday morning," the Summerfield orders say.

Delivery of any other "non-preferential mail" — anything other than first class or newspapers — which piles up over the weekend will be made "within the next five days," the Summerfield order says, with "preference to be given to parcel post."

Summerfield said that the "objective of the foregoing instructions is to reduce expenditures as sharply as possible."

Both Rhodes and East Stroudsburg postmaster Norman Gregory said that the order will go into effect tomorrow "unless new orders are given sometime up to midnight tonight."

43 Caught In Dope Raid

PHILADELPHIA, April 11 (U-P)—Thirty-seven men and six women were seized by police today in a pre-dawn narcotics raid.

Some doors were chopped open, others battered down as the raiding officers routed sleeping suspects.

Confiscated by the raiders were six packets of marijuana and heroin, bottles of capsules and narcotics syringes.

Third State Park To Open

HARRISBURG, April 11 (U-P)—Pennsylvania's third new state park, a 300-acre area in the northern section of the state, will be opened this summer, Gov. Leader said today.

The area, situated in northern Tioga County between Mansfield and Tioga, will be known as Hills Creek State Park.

New Jersey Highway Commissioner Plans For Public Hearings On Route 22 Project

TRENTON, N. J., April 11 (U-P)—Highway Commissioner Dwight R. G. Palmer said today that local public hearings will be held before a final alignment is set for a new Route 22 freeway.

Palmer said before the public hearings can be held an aerial survey will have to be made to set a line give or take a few hundred feet. The survey has not started yet, he said.

Palmer's remarks were contained in a statement given out by Gov. Meyner at a news conference.

SIGNED, SEALED BUT UNDELIVERED will be the packages Russ Decker was getting ready to mail yesterday—if they arrive at their destination on Friday night, that is. Mail will accumulate in U. S. Post Offices over weekends, be delivered on Monday. Priority will be given to first class mail and newspapers according to Post Office Department. (Staff Photo by MacLeod)

State Department Denies Responsibility For Charges Against Canadian Diplomat

WASHINGTON, April 11 (U-P)—The State Department, taking direct issue with the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee, today denied any responsibility for allegations of communism made against the late Herbert Norman, a Canadian diplomat.

Norman, Canadian ambassador to Egypt, committed suicide in Cairo a week ago today.

Chlorine Gas Causes People To Flee Homes

ELLWOOD CITY, Pa., April 11 (U-P)—Poisonous chlorine gas, pouring from a leaking valve on a railroad tank car, sickened nearly 100 men, women and children today and caused an estimated 1,000 persons to flee their homes.

For a period of several hours the fumes spread silently through the nearby town of Frisco, a community of about 120 residents, 25 miles northwest of Pittsburgh.

Families—among them Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Tritt and their nine children—were sickened in their sleep. It was 5:30 a.m. when the dangerous situation was discovered.

Alarm

Police, volunteer firemen and Civil Defense workers spread the alarm, evacuated residents, hunted the source of the leak. It was located finally in the tank car on a siding near the Bison Laboratories, Inc. The firm uses chlorine in the manufacture of a chemical bleach.

Firemen trained their hoses on the car to dilute the poison. Working without masks, many of the volunteers became ill as they edged too close to the yellow-green cloud of gas.

Finally 28-year-old Dan Pelloni, a plant employee, donned a gas mask, climbed into the car and shut the valve.

Canadian officials have blamed his death in part on the charges aired by the Senate subcommittee, and the affair has put a severe strain on Canadian-American relations.

Newsman

Lincoln White, State Department press officer, called newsmen in to deny a subcommittee statement that his department agreed to publication of the allegations against Norman.

He replied with an emphatic "no," spelling the word out, when asked whether the State Department had ever given the Senate group any secret security data on Norman.

The Canadian government asserts there is no question about Norman's loyalty.

President Eisenhower took occasion today to tell A. D. P. Heeneey, the Canadian ambassador, that he regretted Norman's death and the effect it has had on relations between the two countries.

Staff Note

In a stiff note delivered to the State Department yesterday, the Canadian government threatened to withhold certain security information from the U. S. government unless it had assurances that the material would not be passed along to congressional groups without Canadian approval.

Heeneey said he looks to the State Department rather than the White House for a reply. White said the Canadian note is "under study."

Jordan Fails To Form New Cabinet

AMMAN, Jordan, April 11 (U-P)—An advocate of continued ties with the West failed today in an attempt to form a new government for Jordan, reliable reports said.

Young King Hussein, who suddenly and dramatically dismissed the pro-Syrian government of Premier Suleiman Nabulsi yesterday, asked Dr. Hussein Fakhri Khalidi to form a new government. Staunch opposition from the Left appeared to have foredoomed his chances.

Khalidi, foreign minister until the Nabulsi government took over last October on a wave of anti-Western sentiment, is considered an elder statesman with leanings toward the West. A Palestinian, he had opposed a final break in Jordan's ties with Britain, or any Syrian - Egyptian alignment against the Baghdad Pact allies.

Report

A report, without official confirmation, said Khalidi informed the 22-year-old King he was unable to form a new government.

Apparently the so-called National Front, comprised of Nabulsi's National Socialist party, the Arab Resurrection Socialist party whose political outlook resembles that of the ruling Leftist party in Syria, and the Communists joined in boycotting Khalidi's efforts. Nabulsi has been serving as caretaker premier until a new government can be formed.

Nabulsi, whose policies have been considered contrary to King Hussein's outspoken opposition to Communist influence, prepared to take his case to the country. He scheduled two political speeches tomorrow in Ramallah and Jenin, both in the Palestinian part of Jordan.

Foreign observers expressed fear that "appeals to the streets" by National Socialists and Leftists might lead to violent rioting. Nabulsi is popular with "the streets" because of his consistent opposition to the West, his denunciation of the Baghdad Pact and his policy of unity with Syria and Egypt in the name of "Arab liberation."

The picture emerging from Jordan is one of the young King walking a dangerously high political tightrope from which he might fall at any moment. He has been attempting to mollify the violent anti-Western sentiments of a large section of his country of 1½ million people, two-thirds of whom are in the part of Palestine annexed by Hussein's grandfather, Abdullah, as a result of the Israeli-Arab war.

Chief Clerk Refuses To Testify

HARRISBURG, April 11 (U-P)—Gov. Leader's executive secretary and chief clerk today refused to testify before a legislative committee probing the State Pardon Board.

They were subpoenaed by the committee to give their versions of incidents surrounding the death sentence commutations granted last September to David Darcy and two companions.

Darcy, Harry Zietz and Harold Foster were convicted of the murder of a bystander after a 1947 Bucks County tavern holdup.

Atty. Gen. McBride said David V. Randall, the secretary, and Richard Heagy, chief clerk, turned down the request to appear at the public hearing on his advice.

Gov. Leader turned down an invitation to appear before the committee two weeks ago upon advice of McBride.

Question

Their refusals came shortly after Matthew H. McCloskey, chairman of the Democratic National Finance Committee, "categorically" denied that he contributed money toward the eight-year legal battle that saved Darcy's life.

He testified he personally distributed to board members copies of a circuit court opinion in the Darcy case.

Asked why he delivered the documents in person, the gray-haired Philadelphia builder-publisher and Pennsylvania political power said:

"When I decide to do something... I just go ahead and do it myself. That's the way you get things done."

American Makes Radio Move

NEW YORK, April 11 (U-P)—The American Broadcasting Co., radio network is being set up as a separate subsidiary of its parent firm in an announced bid to "achieve the number one position in network radio."

ABC television activities are not involved in the change.

Future Cutback Attacked In Legal Action

WASHINGTON, April 11 (U-P)—The House adjourned today until Monday, in the face of a Saturday deadline set by Postmaster General Summerfield for cutting back mail service unless he gets more money.

This made certain, on the basis of Summerfield's statement to senators, that there will be no regular mail deliveries this Saturday, and that no post offices will be open Saturday and Sunday.

These were the first two cutback steps ordered by Summerfield, to be effective tomorrow at midnight, another 47 million dollars to operate on during the remainder of the fiscal year ending June 30.

Another cutback step was attacked in court today with the filing of a suit by users of third class mail against a Summerfield order to suspend virtually all third class mail service, effective April 29.

Meanwhile Democratic members of the House Appropriations Committee agreed informally today to join with the Republicans and give the Post Office Department 40 to 42 million dollars of the 47 million dollars in emergency funds Summerfield says is essential.

About 20 of the 30 Democrats on the committee met secretly to decide what course they would take when the full 50 - member committee meets tomorrow.

Recommendation

A subcommittee has recommended that the department be given only 17 million dollars for the remaining 2½ months of the present fiscal year.

Most of the 20 Republican members favor the entire 47 million dollars but were reported willing to settle for a compromise of not less than 40 million.

"At least two-thirds of the Democrats will go along on that compromise," a Democrat who attended today's meeting said.

Summerfield appeared before the Senate Appropriations Committee this afternoon to plead for the money he already had asked from the House.

He said his order to begin the cutbacks was already out, and added:

"Nothing can stop it except the availability of the money by tomorrow midnight and apparently that's not in the cards."

By "availability of the money," Summerfield told reporters he meant the dispatch of the appropriation bill to the White House and its signing by the President.

The bill hasn't even got out of committee in either House or Senate yet, and when the House adjourned this afternoon that spelled doom for any shortcut, speedup arrangement.

Summerfield said that once he learns how much Congress will make available, he will revoke all the service cuts that he can and still stay within the money available.

He was asked whether he had reason to believe an appropriation bill could clear Congress before the Easter recess begins April 18 and said he did not know.

The third class mail suit, filed in U. S. District Court, complained that Summerfield was trying to exercise unlawful authority with his plans for an embargo on this type of mail, which is heavily used by direct mail advertisers.

The complaint asked an injunction to restrain Summerfield from actually suspending third class mail service, and said that if an injunction is not issued, "irreparable damages" will be suffered by the complainants.

Filing the suit were the Associated Third Class Mail Users Inc., with headquarters here, and Spencer Gifts Inc. of Atlantic City, N. J. The petition said the mail users group included several hundred members who together spend at least 10 millions annually on third class postage.

Summerfield estimated last week that service reductions being planned would affect 20,000 employees.

The Post Office Department has about 500,000 employees.

Ike Requests Reduction In Soil Bank

WASHINGTON, April 11 (U-P)—President Eisenhower asked Congress today to reduce the appropriation he has requested for the soil bank program from $1,254,000,000 to a flat billion dollars.

The 254-million-dollar reduction would be in funds he has asked for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

The reduction had been forecast. On March 15, Agriculture Department officials said farmer participation in the soil bank program apparently would fall short of the government goal. It was then established that funds needed to finance the program might be more than a quarter-billion dollars below the President's estimate.

The White House said today: "A detailed study of the operations of the soil bank program has just been completed. On the basis of this study, it now appears that the financial needs of the program in 1958 will be less than had been contemplated at the time of the preparation of the 1958 budget for the following reasons:

Estimate

"1. It is now estimated that the sign-up for the 1956 and 1957 conservation programs will be much less than expected last fall, and thus payments to farmers under the program will be less than originally planned. Under the conservative reserve program, farmers receive rent for cropland placed in cover crops and reforestation and also received payments to cover part of the cost of carrying out conservation practices. The program is effective for five calendar years from 1956 through 1960.

"2. The timing of the payments for both parts of the soil bank program — the conservation reserve program and the acreage reserve program—will be made later in the calendar year than was originally contemplated. This will result in a shift in the need for funds between fiscal years.

Lenten Meditation

Dr. Daniel Brodhead
Tobyhanna Methodist Church

ON A RECENT POLL of favorite hymns "The Old Rugged Cross" was first on the list. Its theme is the attractiveness of the Cross.

Some, wanting the new and different, reject the Cross because it is old; yet the perennial problem of sin is ever the same, and it is at the Cross that we find pardon for our sins, power over our sins, and peace.

Some, wanting things soft and smooth, reject it because it is rugged; yet only by courageously coming the way of the Cross do we find the life we long for.

Some, concerned only with the immediate, reject it because it seems distant; yet far from being irrelevant, it is the pattern of the universe. Some, seeking pleasure, are repelled by its suffering and shame; yet it is God's plan for the salvation of the world.

There at the Cross we find the true measure of sin, the true meaning and standard for our lives, the once-for-all mark of God's love. May Christ's Cross claim us, haunt us, lay compulsion upon us, leading to love, loyalty, and at last, a crown.

President Seeks Airways Board

WASHINGTON, April 11 (U-P)—President Eisenhower, declaring there is need for "vigorous action," today asked Congress to create an independent Airways Modernization Board to "expedite the improvement of air traffic control."

The President sent to Congress a report saying the government must take the lead in "more sophisticated and energetic efforts to reduce the nation's air traffic."

"Over 65,000 aircraft hours are flown daily in the United States," the report said. "We have counted, with the aid of radars, as many as 220 aircraft flying at one time in the vicinity of a major city. Many thousands of military jets mingle in the mixed traffic of our airways and serve to accent the dangers of 'see and seen' rules."

Homebuilding Continues In Slump

WASHINGTON, April 11 (U-P)—Homebuilding continued its slump last month, dropping to the lowest rate since 1949.

The March figures, reported by the Labor Department today, brought a statement from the National Assn. of Homebuilders that the Federal Reserve Board tight-money policies have "kept the home building industry tottering on the brink of disaster."

"This economic brinkmanship is a dangerous game that the country no longer can afford to play," said in a statement by George S. Goodyear, president of the association. The group is pressing Congress for easier mortgage credit.

The Labor Department said last month's housing starts totaled 83,000 units for a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 880,000. This compared with 1,118,000 starts last year and the record 1,329,000 units actually built in 1955.

Starts

The number of housing starts last month was not only the lowest March total since 1949 but it also brought the annual and first quarter rates to the lowest level since that year. First quarter housing starts this year totaled 213,000.

Gains from February to March, which are normal in the spring season, were reported from all major regions. The February-March increase amounted to 28 per cent.

Of the 83,000 units started in March, 75,500 were privately financed dwellings and 7,500 were publicly financed under a military housing program authorized by Congress.

The Labor Department report said "the decline in private homebuilding which took place throughout 1956 has extended through the first quarter of this year."

Hospital Installs New Dial System

GENERAL Hospital of Monroe County took another step forward yesterday when a modern dial telephone system was put into operation.

This new system was installed to eliminate the large amount of intercommunicating calls passing through the switchboard, Superintendent Harry J. Smith reported. This will enable the operator to devote more time to incoming calls and will eliminate the need for a second operator, he said. The installation also provides for future growth of the hospital.

Special Alarm

The switchboard is equipped with a special alarm circuit back to the repair center of the Bell Telephone Co. to provide prompt and efficient repair service 24 hours a day.

This change-over was prompted for the reason of giving faster and more prompt service to the public when they have to call the hospital, Smith said.

Jewish Passover To Begin Monday

By Paul Carlson
"PESACH ZMIAN Herutenu... The time of our freedom!"

These words will be on the lips of Jews around the world as they again celebrate another Passover, beginning Monday night and continuing through April 23rd.

Traditionally, this festival of freedom has called to remembrance the emancipation of the Israelites, when they were in bondage under Pharaoh in Egypt. However, through the centuries it has come to mean even more.

"The Passover Hagadah recounts the plight of the Jews in Pharaoh's Egypt, and now the plight of the Jews in modern Egypt under Nasser," said Rabbi Yehudah E. Perkin of Temple Israel Synagogue.

"The builders of Israel's freedom today," he added, "go about their tasks in the same determined fashion as the ancient Hebrews with suffering, sacrifice and courage."

Preparatory to the Passover, local Jewry will observe Shabbat Hagadol tomorrow. This will be followed by E'dikas Chometz, or the searching for leaven, on Sunday night.

At 10 a.m., Monday, the leaven will be burned. That night the first Seder will be celebrated.

Rabbi Perkin noted that each Passover means the liberation of an enslaved nation with a guarantee of the sacred rights of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

"Pesach calls us to be free from the tyranny of our own selves," he continued, "free from the enslavement of inequality, free from corroding hate that eats away the ties which unite mankind."

To illustrate this point, the rabbi recounted that a noted Jewish artist once drew the portrait of three old women sitting around a table drinking tea. Cleverly, the artist captured the characteristics of a gossip in each face. Then behind them, he inscribed the Biblical admonition: "Thou shalt not bear false witness."

"Back-biting hurts three persons," said Rabbi Perkin. "The person who is being maligned, the person who listens, and the one who gossips."

The rabbi observed that, on Passover Eve, there is a custom to drink four cups of wine as part of the Seder service. These four cups are said to represent the four promises that God made to the ancient Israelites:

1. "I will take you out of the land of bondage."
2. "And I will save you."
3. "And I will free you from slavery."
4. "And I will take you to be a chosen people."

"It was these four freedoms which gave the promise of the dawn of a new era to the slaves of Egypt," he said. "And it is these four freedoms that have found their modern counterpart in the four great ideals of the Atlantic Charter that gave this world war its significance and meaning."

"When we raise our cups of wine in a toast to the future," he continued, "we do so this year in recognition of the four essential human freedoms."

As freedom of speech and expression is the natural right of all men, he said, so freedom of worship should be each man's that he might worship God in his own way.

Freedom from want involves economic understandings among nations that men might secure a healthy, peaceful way of life, he said further.

Freedom from fear means "a world-wide reduction in armaments" so that no nation will be in a position to commit an act of aggression against any world neighbor, he added.

"These freedoms offer the world today the promise of the dawn of a new day for all humanity," the rabbi continued.

"It is natural that in this Passover season our thoughts should turn more than ever to Israel, which is the focal point, both historically and ethically, of the Passover events," he said.

Pointing to current events in the Middle East, the rabbi observed that the history of the Passover is repeating itself in Israel today.

"So long as the festival of Passover is celebrated, both as a heritage and as a living experience, the blaze of liberty and truth first kindled by the Hebrew prophets will not be extinguished by extreme violators of human rights," declared Rabbi Perkin.

"Rather unity of mankind shall become a reality with freedom and justice," he concluded.

Indonesia's President Maintains Plan

By J. M. ROBERTS
Associated Press News Analyst
President Sukarno of Indonesia has finally gone through with his plan to bypass parliamentary methods, setting up a governmental system more akin to that of Russia than to those in the Western world.

He says the new Cabinet is intended to serve only during what he terms the "present" emergency, but there is no indication when that emergency will end, or indication of real steps to end it.

The emergency is primarily economic, and primarily due to nationalistic determination to cut off its Dutch business nose to site its Asiatic face.

No Worse

The Indonesians are no worse off now than they were under Dutch rule, and they do cherish independence. But they have become a prime example of the precept that political independence is a hard row to hoe without economic stability.

It's a case of "don't know how" complicated by political immaturity and racial bias. They have become so embittered against the white race they will not even accept help from it. Dutch and British businessmen have been so discriminated against, have found so little protection under law, that they have given up in large numbers.

Even white doctors are discouraged. Yet Jakarta, the capital, has so few doctors they do not answer calls, and emergency cases are overlooked in the hospital jam.

Provincial governments complain they are stripped bare by the demands of the central government. This has resulted in rebellious political coups, mostly led by army officers. Some of these have agreed to give the new government a chance.

The government approaches the problem by trying to establish political stability ahead of economic stability. To do so, it abolishes parliamentary controls only a few months after the people have elected their own representatives for the first time.

Plans

It plans, instead, an appointed "advisory" council which is expected to include Communists. The Communists got a big vote in the election — not surprising when considered against the population's economic plight.

Major Moslem elements are refusing to cooperate.

Sukarno thinks he is choosing a middle way. Leaders of the outlying provinces, however, are pointing to what the West learned early after World War I, that there is no middle way when dealing with the Communists.

They say that if Indonesia does not have an anti-Communist government, she will have a Communist government. That is the lesson of coalitions with the Reds everywhere.

One of the salient factors in the situation is that Sumatra, one of the richest and most highly developed sections of the sprawling nation, is overwhelmingly Moslem. Its loss to the central government is definitely threatened.

And that, in all probability, would mean the disintegration of Indonesia.

Scouts Plan Paper Drive

Department Receives Low Bid

HARRISBURG, April 11 (AP)—The State Mines Department today received an unofficial low bid of $167,500 from B. G. Coon Construction Co. of Luzerne for a flood control project at Larksville, Luzerne County.

Daniel Connelly, deputy secretary, said the job includes realignment of Boston Creek. It is designed to prevent water from entering the Kingston Coal Co. mine and the active Boston Mine of the Hudson Coal Co.

Recent heavy rains have resulted in flooding of the mines. The job also calls for building of 900 feet of 80-inch reinforced concrete pipe and six catch basins.

The job is part of the state's anthracite mine drainage program.

City Solves Problems With No Outside Help

A "let's do it ourselves" philosophy which should be the pattern for all of America is being demonstrated with a great deal of success in at least one community.

We refer to Columbus, Ind., the locale of an interesting article which appeared in Tuesday's edition of the Wall Street Journal.

When the Columbus High School needed a new gym, the story relates, residents of the industrial-agricultural community on the east fork of the White River staged a charity-style fund drive that raised one million dollars—60 percent of it donated by industry.

"The campaign made it unnecessary for the local government to issue bonds that would have saddled the city with debt and high interest charges, and which might have put pressure on tax rates," said the Journal.

Solving of community problems without outside help is characteristic of Columbus, a city of 22,000, the article observes, adding, "Its solutions may be of interest to other cities with fund-raising problems."

Work is progressing on a 12-room elementary school. Industry contributed $314,500 for the modernistic glass and brick structure, which will be ready by September.

As one industrialist pointed out, the contributions are permitting school facilities to be brought up to date to the point where taxes can handle any future expansions.

"We have adopted the philosophy of substituting contributions from industry and individuals for tax money where it might be difficult to raise the tax money," explained a second industrial leader. "When something needs to be done we don't sit and argue until the tax money is forthcoming. We start a drive for the money and we get it."

When the city suffered from a housing shortage, business leaders kicked in $46,000 to provide municipal facilities for vacant land. That stimulated a builder to erect four apartment buildings housing 52 families.

Norman Didn't Kill Himself Because Of Any Testimony Emerson Gave U. S. Probers

John Cogley, of the Fund for the Republic, recently wrote an article in "The Commonwealth" entitled "The Commonweal's Dilemma." In this article he quotes me as follows:

"Civil liberties are always impaired by Congressional committees... The fundamental trial by jury, the right of a day in court, the right to be represented by counsel and many other basic civil rights are impaired."

Well, I might have written like this before Congressional committees revised their rules, but I wondered what words were used as substitutes. So I asked my young ladies to find these words of wisdom and they did in the "New York Herald Tribune" for March 25, 1940, exactly 17 years ago. I had no idea that anyone saved my articles for so many years.

The article is on "Civil Liberties," and I must say that while I am honored that John Cogley has preserved my wisdom for posterity and perhaps carried it in his pocket all these 17 years, he has permitted himself generous but uncivil liberties in this quotation. So let me give just a little longer quotation than John Cogley does:

"I note in this connection that those who shout most fervently for civil liberties often defend the procedure of the Black and La Follette committees and the National Labor Relations Board, but they condemn the Dies and Smith committees. On the one hand, they say that civil liberties are protected; on the other that civil liberties are impaired."

"Obviously they are not truthful. For civil liberties are always impaired by Congressional committees and by most administrative boards. The fundamental trial by jury, the right of a day in court, the right to be represented by counsel and many other basic civil rights are impaired."

What Cogley left out were the administrative boards which have, during the intervening 17 years, proliferated until today there are exceptional laws for some. For instance, an American citizen, if he buys stock here, must hold it at least six months, to get a capital gain. But anyone buying that same stock in one of the numerous tax havens that have established themselves around the world, does not need to worry about a capital gain if he has a smart lawyer and accountant. He can do business in the United States and pay no taxes anywhere and many do just that.

In another paragraph in that 17 year old article, I ask this: "What about the civil liberties involved in this technique? What about the civil liberties involved in a quint-eyed brat out of the Harvard Law School chasing around the country demanding to see private letter files and squeaking: 'When you talk to me you're talking to the government of the United States?' What are the civil liberties in that proposition?"

Cogley does not say that since 1940, the Congressional committees have extended their rules to

To keep children off the streets, the town—via contributions—built three centers where boys and girls may take part in such activities as watching TV, playing basketball, learning to sew and studying wood working.

Last October a fund drive for current year operations raised $76,250, exceeding the $67,252 goal.

To attract and hold top-flight teachers, the Columbus School Foundation was launched with a collection drive last December. Collections totaled $6,500, surpassing the $5,000 goal. The fund will be used to help support teachers taking summer courses, to send select teachers to Europe for a summer and to help teachers and the school system in other ways.

"If you don't have attractive schools, hospitals, housing and parks, you won't attract good people to the town," said the president of the city's largest industry.

The Journal observes that "Columbus may be no different when it comes to obtaining business support for community and charity projects, but the extent of that support is unusual."

One merchant was quoted as saying, "We're just hillbillies around here, but we do look out for our own."

Are there many complaints about there being too many drives? Apparently not, and those people who do complain "don't give much anyway," one leader noted.

The Columbus plan may not be altogether new, but its application in this modern age of government subsidies is novel and refreshing. It's no secret that tax monies sent to Harrisburg and Washington never get back home in their entirety. The cost of administering the program always takes a sizable bite out of the funds.

It is heartening, therefore, to learn some people are succeeding in their efforts to solve the financial problems facing their community. Columbus, Ind., is to be congratulated for taking the bull by the horns. It's a much healthier economic attitude than saying, "Let George do it"—meaning Uncle Sam or the state government.

Who's At Fault—The Boss Or You?

By Anne Heywood

What can you do if you find yourself working for a really horrible character? That's Jane's problem and I guess it's one we've all had at one time or another.

"Don't tell me to leave," she writes. "I like the company and the work I do. Everything was fine until my nice boss went to another firm and this monster was brought in."

Unimportant Details "He's very persnickety about unimportant little details and just drives us all crazy. I get so I'm practically trembling with rage—he's so unreasonable. He doesn't really know how to handle the job and has nowhere near the ability the other boss had. Because of him, a couple of girls in the department left."

"How can I handle him?" The first secret of handling other people is to handle ourselves—and that's always difficult! I know that Jane probably feels that it's her boss who needs changing—not her. But there's a lot about Jane that she could change which would make life much more pleasant for her and her boss.

First of all, there's the little business of "put up or shut up."

Dawnright Fool Jane is a big girl now. She has decided, on the basis of certain considerations, to stay with the job. There's enough that she likes, and enough future, so she does not plan to leave. Well, then, she's a downright fool to continue to stay there if she's going to complain about it.

Nobody is holding her there but herself. She can leave any time she likes. But if she prefers to stay, she'd better stay with some degree of good sportsmanship. This boss is part of the bargain. She'd better stick by her bargain—or leave.

Second, there is no such thing as an innately evil person. There are frightened people, unhappy people and insecure people—but nobody is born wicked. Therefore, if Jane will try to find out what makes her boss tick, she'll get some insight to his behaviour.

To know all, as the French proverb goes, is to forgive all. Let her quietly draw him out. Let her really listen to him and watch him and let him talk occasionally. The chances are she'll begin to understand him. A little understanding may make him blossom like a garden!

Defend Him Third, she must defend him to the others. As long as she works for him, she must not join the little groups who criticize him. Here again it's a simple matter of good sportsmanship. Moreover, the more we defend people, the more we believe the defense. Keep assuring the others that he's an all right guy and you'll begin to believe it yourself!

If you have such a problem, send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope for my pamphlet, Pointers to Good Personal Relationships.

Try and Stop Me

Vice-presidents in advertising agencies always seemed to fascinate the late Fred Allen. His most famous designation for these V. P.s was "molehill men."

"A molehill man," he went on to explain, "is a pseudo-busy executive who comes to work at 9 a. m. and finds a molehill on his desk. He has until 5 p. m. to make this molehill into a mountain. An accomplished molehill man will often have his mountain finished even before lunch."

Big-hearted salesman didn't forget his gal back in New York while he was gallivanting around Europe's capitals. "Run around to some smart shops," he counseled in a letter, "and pick up a few nice things for yourself. But don't get caught."

Throughout the history of the United States, the proportion of church membership in the total population has risen.

President's Special Envoy Includes Israel On Tour

Washington, April 11—Israel is now definitely on the itinerary of special Ambassador James Richards.

The President's envoy is going there at the conclusion of his tour of Arab countries. Tel Aviv will be the last stop on his eventful swing through the Middle East to explain the new policy there.

Prior to that, Richards will visit Yemen, Saudi Arabia, Ethiopia, Sudan and Libya.

Behind this unannounced decision is a series of significant developments:

In return for being able to obtain oil and other supplies through the Gulf of Aqaba, Israel will not press a showdown with Egyptian dictator Nasser on the Suez Canal. Israel has specific assurances that free movement through Aqaba has complete U. S. backing, including certain military measures.

Premier Ben-Gurion has informed Secretary Dulles that if Egypt, Saudi Arabia and Syria try to seize tottering Jordan, Israel will deem it essential for self-defense to move into militarily-important border sections near the Dead Sea.

In the event the partitioning of Jordan is attempted, France will provide Israel with arms, particularly jet planes. The two countries have discussed that in detail.

Undersecretary of State Christian Herter has twice conferred with Ambassador Alphonse on these military preparations. Alphonse was informed the U. S. views them with gravest misgivings.

There is no indication these admonitions have had any effect on French policy. Senate Foreign Relations Committee members have been advised Jordan's fate is hanging by a thread. Its treasury is virtually empty, and a large part of the country is occupied by Syrian and Saudi Arabian troops. Syria has upwards of 5,000 men in Jordan, equipped with recently-received Russian tanks.

Iraq has a large force ready to move into Jordan at any time. Iraq, with the best-trained and equipped Arab army, had troops in Jordan but withdrew them several months ago.

Jordan's solvency, since the cancellation of Britain's annual $30,000,000 subsidy, is dependent on funds promised by Egypt, Syria and Saudi Arabia. But of the three, only Saudi Arabia is able to make good its commitment. Egypt is in severe financial straits, and Syria also is in serious difficulty.

This factor is playing a key role in the desperate struggle in Jordan between young, pro-Western King Hussein and the Egyptian-Syrian-Communist cabal endeavoring to fasten its control on that country.

Hussein is eager for U. S. aid, and wants Ambassador Richards to come to Jordan to discuss the matter. An unannounced invitation was extended to him.

This incensed the pro-Egypt-Red bloc. Violent demands were made that the invitation be withdrawn. Hussein's life and throne were openly threatened. It's still undetermined what will be done about Richards going to Jordan.

Flashes—If and when Congress does pass a civil rights bill, the Justice Department is going to ask for $250,000 to enforce it. Attorney General Brownell disclosed this, under questioning by Representative Robert Sikes (D., Fla.) at a private House Appropriations Committee meeting. Said Brownell, "My staff estimates that approximately $250,000 will be required to administer the proposed civil rights measure. That's a rough estimate and the amount could be substantially different, depending on the kind of law passed by Congress... Premier Nehru's playing footsie with the Communists is paying off—for the Reds. They made startling gains in the final returns from India's recent election. Overall, Nehru's Congress Party still has a big majority in the national parliament and state legislatures. But the Reds boosted their representation in New Delhi from 17 to 25 seats, and won control in the populous Kerala, which boasts of having the highest literacy rate in India. Nehru's party ran a poor third there—much to his pained surprise.

No wonder the Times of India pointed editorialized "an illusion has been shattered," and Nehru's strategy of "cultivating Communist friendship has failed to pay the political dividends he anticipated."

Be Careful!—There is one aspect of tax dodging that pays off—informing on tax evaders.

The number of such informers has reached an all-time high.

The Internal Revenue Service reported to Congress that tips were received from 3,965 informers last year, with the result that $16,052,000 in additional taxes were collected. Both totals are records.

So was the $563,979 paid to informers for tips.

However, not all of them panned out. Actually, only 478 collected awards, which consist of a percentage of the delinquent taxes. The average amount is five percent; but in some instances as much as ten percent is paid.

One informer got $80,000 for turning up a multi-million dollar tax evasion.

Particularly interesting cases reported by the IRS are:

A cashier informed on his bank president, with the result the banker had to pay $120,000 in additional taxes, penalty and interest. For the tip the cashier got $5,000.

The office manager of a large corporation reported that a top official was doing some fancy finagling in his tax returns. This cost the businessman more than $300,000 in IRS payments and enriched the informer by $10,000.

Northern Lights Make Local Show

By Jim Riley

Followers of science within our area had a field day, or rather night, during the wee hours of Wednesday morning.

The Northern Lights, known to the more intelligent people by a name which I am unable to spell, were very plainly visible in many sections of Monroe County.

According to reports Wooddale was one of the best vantage points.

Late go-to-bedders apparently had a front row seat on the pageant of lights.

Joe Whalen's promotion to program director at radio station WVPO on Wednesday was certainly a piece of good news.

It couldn't happen to a more deserving guy and he has all our wishes for good luck in the future.

I bet he'll still root for the Yankees. He better!

Mr. and Mrs. James Gaffney, residents of Bangor, visited in the Stroudsburgs on Wednesday afternoon.

They bumped into many former acquaintances and visited a spell here at The Daily Record—where Jim used to work.

Chris Melchner, 1157 W. Main St., Stroudsburg, is celebrating a birthday today.

Congratulations are in order, although Chris is remaining quiet on the number of the birthday anniversary.

Bobby Westbrook, Daily Record social editor, is leaving for Washington, D. C. this morning. She will see son Pete as a member of the Presbyterian College Chorus.

The other day we wrote a few paragraphs on the fact that Kenneth and Sally Repsher, and son Byron, are enroute home from Okinawa, where Ken has been stationed with the Army.

Everything was alright except that we referred to Ken as Pvt. Repsher, while actually it should have been Sgt. 1/C.

So sorry, buddy.

Harry Haney is celebrating his 10th birthday today.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herb Haney and lives on Chipfield Drive.

Bruce Frantz is currently working in New Jersey.

Merle C. Ostrom, former assistant publisher of The Daily Record, is celebrating a birthday today.

He's celebrating the important occasion by enjoying another chapter in his life of retirement.

The Headliners Playwrights are continually confounded by the ability of life to exceed their dramas. Take Tennessee Williams, for example. He is the most successful contemporary dramatist. He has grown rich and famous as a consequence of his ability to give poetic brilliance and dramatic impact to melancholy themes and troubled people... Now Williams confesses in Newsweek that the creative strain of writing about unhappy people has him thinking of undergoing psychoanalysis. "I would like to write a happy play for a change," he plaintively declares. In other words, when Tennessee Williams was writing about troubled people—he was writing about himself.

Christopher Morley has gone into the darkness. In common with superior wits, however, his words still radiate the twinkle in his eyes. Morley could laugh at life because he loved it. He once summed up his personal philosophy in a single thoughtful line: "From now on until the end of time no one else will ever see life with my eyes—and I mean to make the most of my chance."

When Mike Todd was 12-years-old he was running a floating crap game. Since then, he has never stopped gambling. He risked $6 million on "Around the World in 80 Days" and hit the jackpot. Todd wasn't always so lucky. Some years ago, he owned stock in a racetrack. He used that stock to bet on a horse and lost. Todd has the remarkable distinction of being the only man who ever lost a racetrack on a horse-race.

Columnist Don Marquis' whimsical creations, "archy and mehlthal," will soon come to life again in the new musical, "Shinbone Alley," co-starring Eartha Kitt and Eddie Bracken... Marquis, who was the nation's leading humorist for many years, was constantly haunted by tragedy. His wife passed, then his two young children joined her. He was once afflicted with temporary blindness. Then a paralytic stroke. Nevertheless, his private grief never impaired his gift for laughter. While beridden, Marquis continued creating the bright essays and verse which enabled others to laugh.

Steels Lose Ground In Stock Market

NEW YORK, April 11 (AP)—Steels took losses on profit-taking but sugar and drug shares rose on today's mixed stock market.

Volume held up well, reaching 2,350,000 shares compared with yesterday's 2,920,000, the year's highest level.

Despite these news items, advances outnumbered declines by 468 to 417, of the 1,144 issues traded; and there were 75 new 1957 highs as against 16 new lows.

Weighted by the blue chip issues, however, the Associated Press average of 60 stocks showed a decline of 30 cents to $177.90, with the industrials unchanged, the rails down 50 cents and the utilities down 20 cents. Of the 15 most active stocks, there were 8 advances, 6 declines and one unchanged.

Most Active
Studebaker-Packard was the day's most active stock, up 1/4 at 8 1/2 on 67,500 shares. Second was Bethlehem Steel, off 1/4 at 44 1/2 on 39,600 shares. Third was General Dynamics, up 1 1/2 at 67 1/2 on 30,100 shares.

Next came Lukens Steel, off 2 1/2 at 77 1/2 and Shell Transport & Trading, up 1/4 at 24.

Also heavily traded, were U. S. Steel, off 1 and Chrysler off 1/2. As the drug issues rose, Schering added 1 1/2, Pfizer 1 1/2 and Parke, Davis 1/2.

Superior Oil of California added another 85 points to close at 1,390. But Gulf Oil dropped 1/2 and Royal Dutch 1/2.

Prices were irregular in the American Stock Exchange where volume totaled 980,000 shares compared with 1,010,000 yesterday.

Corporate bonds declined in moderately active trading. U. S. Government bonds were lower in light over the counter dealings.

Sales Suspended
NEW YORK, April 11 (AP)—Trading the stock of General Plywood Corp. of Louisville was suspended for seven minutes on the American Stock Exchange today because of a sudden burst of "sell" orders.

Study Of State Highways Operations To Begin Soon

HARRISBURG, April 11 (AP)—Gov. Leader disclosed today a non-partisan study of state highways Department operations will be started soon by the state Planning Board.

At the same time, he praised Highways Secretary Joseph J. Lawler as one of the hardest-working members of his administration.

The study by the Planning Board is the answer to Republican demands for a probe of the department. Although approved by the GOP House, Senate GOP leaders are holding up such an inquiry.

Conference
Asked at his news conference if the Planning Board will proceed with its study even if the Legislature approves an investigation, Lawler replied:

"This (Planning Board survey) has no relationship on what will be or will not be done in the Legislature."

The Planning Board, he said, will make a study of Pennsylvania's highway needs as a prelude to laying out a long-range road program in the Commonwealth.

The board, with equal Republican and Democratic representation, is armed with a $300,000 appropriation. The 1955 Legislature took it out of the Commerce Department and made it an independent agency under the governor.

Shareowners Of PP&L To Meet

Eleven representatives, business and professional leaders will be elected as directors by PP&L's preferred and common shareowners. The newly elected-in directors will convene after the annual meeting to elect a president and appoint other company officers.

The group has grown by nearly 20,000 since 1952 when it reached the 75,000 shareowner milestone. Make-up of this shareowners group is largely local. More than seven in 10 shareowners are Pennsylvanians, a majority of these being company customers.

Kentucky Derby May Cost Army $100 Million In Funds

WASHINGTON, April 11 (AP)—A cut in Army funds was threatened today because it offered members of Congress an expense-paid trip to Kentucky during Derby week-end.

Rep. Mahon (D-Texas), chairman of an Appropriations subcommittee which handles military funds, told the House "this seductive Army bobble could possibly cost the Army 100 million dollars in reduced appropriations."

And at the Pentagon, Secretary of the Army Brucker said he had made a mistake.

Mention
But Brucker insisted his invitation for Congress members to witness a military demonstration at Ft. Knox, Ky., May 3 and 4 "is not a free junket to the Derby at the expense of the taxpayers, but a serious expedition."

His mistake, he said, was "in not recognizing the coincidence in timing and place."

Brucker's invitation, offering free transportation, meals and lodging, said any congressman who wanted to stay over for the Derby at Louisville would get transportation home.

"I regret that I am not in position to make arrangements for seats at the Derby," his invitation said.

Brucker told reporters today that plans for the demonstration at Ft. Knox began last fall, with no thought of the Derby, and the dates of May 2 and 3 were tentatively set.

Serious
In March, he said, Rep. Robison (R-Ky) mentioned that was Derby weekend and that "when the show was over" some Congress members might want to remain for the Derby.

Brucker said he decided there would "be no harm" in changing the demonstration dates by one day and in permitting congressmen to stay on at the fort "provided the Army bought no tickets" to the race. He added that those who stayed on after the demonstration would pay for their meals.

Mahon was sharply impressed by the "coincidence" in dates, as Brucker called it, even if Brucker was not. He told the House he was issuing a "public warning" to Brucker to stop that kind of spending.

The day will begin with a "Kicker's Handicap" golf tournament, followed by the regular business meeting at 5 p.m.

Speaker
Dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m., and will be followed by an address by J. E. Gallagher, chief of the research department of the American Chemical Paint Co.

The next meeting will be held Tuesday, May 21, at the Lehigh Country Club, when Paul Weiss, superintendent of Lehigh Country Club, will act as host.

DL&W Chief Hurls Charge Of Harm

SYRACUSE, April 11 (AP)—The president of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad today charged the administration in Washington with taking more steps harmful to railroads and their employees than any administration in recent history.

Seaway
Perry M. Shoemaker made the charge in an address to a luncheon meeting of the Atlantic Shippers Advisory Board. He did not identify the administration by name, but added that it fell into the same category in its failure to take potentially helpful actions.

Shoemaker cited the St. Lawrence Seaway, the federal program for interstate highways and the continuation of transportation excise taxes as three examples of harmful actions of the administration. He said that the Seaway had been "clearly exposed as not essential to defense."

Schedules On Daylight Saving Time

WHEN DAYLIGHT Saving Time begins on April 28, all Lackawanna public timetables, clocks and train indicator boards in stations will show Daylight Saving Time, the railroad announced yesterday. Because virtually all communities served by the Lackawanna will adopt Daylight Saving Time, this changeover will be effective throughout the railroad's system.

It is expected this will eliminate all confusion with the change in time, for both commuters and through-line passengers.

Thomas McDonnell, Philadelphia, won a fully equipped 1957 automobile in a national contest sponsored by Ronson Corp.

The contest offered $150,000 in prizes, providing duplicate awards for contestants from the East and West.

McDonnell was named a first grand prize winner in the $150,000 Ronson Electric Shaver contest conducted among retail sales clerks nationally.

Adolph Herskovic, of San Francisco, was the winner in the West. Other contest winners named by Herbert M. Stein, Ronson General Sales Manager, were:

Winning duplicate second prizes, an all expense-paid, one-week Bermuda trip for two, were William L. Absher, Gastonia, N.C., and M. F. Porter, Los Angeles.

Third prize winners were Rex G. Wilcox, Mansfield, Ohio; and Maurine Statler, Tacoma, Wash. Both received RCA color TV sets.

Thousands of additional Ronson prizes were awarded to participating retail sales personnel throughout the country.

Winners answered in 25 words the statement: "I prefer to sell the Ronson '66' (or Lady Ronson) Electric Shaver because . . ."

It was announced yesterday after a meeting of a joint committee of the directors of the Delaware & Hudson, Erie and Lackawanna Railroads, that a preliminary consolidation study prepared for their railroads by William Weyer & Co. indicated favorable potentialities for service improvements, facility integration and operating advantages. As a result further detailed studies are being undertaken to explore the problems and possibilities of merging.

Civil Defense Compensation Chief Topic

LAW and regulations governing payment of compensation to Civil Defense personnel injured while on duty were discussed by Dr. Richard Gerstell, state C. D. director, at a regional conference in Wilkes-Barre yesterday.

A Monroe County delegation, headed by C. D. Coordinator Paul M. Crown, attended the all-day session. Also present from here were Mrs. Catherine Miller, headquarters supervisor; Thomas Kistler, director of Zone three, East Stroudsburg and vicinity; Dr. W. Grady Moore, science department head at State Teachers College, who is chief of radiological defense for the county, and Herman Balleb, director at Kunkletown.

Jack Anderson, also of Monroe County, helped to organize the conference. He is Eastern Area director.

Dr. Gerstell explained the insurance system the state has set up to take care of all properly enrolled Civil Defense personnel who are called to duty.

Talks
Two U. S. Air Force officers gave illustrated talks on the work of the recently developed Air Intelligence Service Squadron, which was organized to make on-the-spot evaluations of downed enemy military planes.

These teams, it was explained, consist of three parachutists, one a skilled linguist, another an operations man and the third a trained technician. Their duties will be to land near a crashed enemy aircraft, examine the plane and cross-examine surviving enemy crew members.

Civil Defense can perform a valuable service by reporting enemy craft which may have crash-landed, the AISS officers said. Processing and handling of enemy planes and crews by C. D. personnel also was explained by them.

Following luncheon, Craig Williamson, who is in charge of operational procedures for the State C. D. Council, discussed the processing of personnel enrollment lists, the bell and light warning program, and the handling of license plate registrations.

Dallas Dick, in charge of C. D. disaster procedures, explained Public Law 875 dealing with natural and enemy military disasters, and explained procedures for obtaining federal aid in emergencies.

It was announced that a nationwide alert will be held beginning July 12, followed by a week of tests and exercises optional on a local basis.

EASTER MAGIC—in an Easter Egg tree used as the centerpiece at yesterday's Monroe County Garden Club. Each egg shell is decorated and holds amminiature arrangement of its own. White branches in an antique white vase and lavender grass point up the brilliant colors of the eggs and Easter chicks in the arrangement by Mrs. Robert Miller.

Plants, Soil Studied By Garden Club At Easter Tea

Healthy plants and healthy humans were the subject of the two-pronged program presented yesterday afternoon at the Monroe County Garden Club meeting at the Stroudsburg Presbyterian Church.

Dr. O. D. Burke, plant pathologist at Pennsylvania State University, spoke on the common diseases of flowers and vegetables. Plant disease is an abnormal process and is never static. The control program involves using disease-free treated seed, disease-free soil, use of resistant varieties, making the environment opposed to disease and spraying and dusting, he said.

Mrs. Charles Harris Porter of Chester, N. Y., spoke on "New Horizons to Nutrition," in which she warned that because of the excess of chemicals being used in the soil quality food is not generally available anymore. Natural fertilizers and compost supplies nutrient, she said, and showed samples of soil before and after being treated with the new biodynamics. The speakers were introduced by Mrs. Russell E. Hamblin.

Mrs. William Hannas presided at the business meeting. Two new members were welcomed: Mrs. Sarah Kirkham and Mrs. Edwin Oellet. Plans were made for the pilgrimage to Bowman's Hill on May 16. Members not present at the meeting may call Mrs. Hannas 211-M to make reservations.

Mrs. Edward Knob gave a report on Arbor Day. Mrs. A. S. Phelps presented the arrangements displayed by members:

Mrs. Robert Bowlby had several varieties of coleus; Mrs. E. R. Travis showed crocus which had been transplanted from the garden to a small bowl and a dried plant arrangement; Miss Fannie Swartzwelder, spring blossoms of pussy willow, spigwood, maple, black currant, dogwood, huckleberry and elm.

Mrs. Phelps again displayed the root arrangement she had displayed at the February and March meetings, each time with something new added to show how one basic idea can be used many times. This time huckleberry blossoms had been added. She also displayed a branch of sage which is good to flavor salt-free diets. She showed daffodils and hyacinth that had bloomed outside for eight years and urged members to plant their Easter plants out of doors as soon as they have stopped blooming.

Tea was served from a table arranged by Mrs. Robert Miller, which included an Easter egg tree, of white limbs hung with real egg shells decorated by Miss Beatrice Gorgy, painted and holding miniature scenes inside. Lavender grass and small cotton chicks arranged in an antique white vase completed the arrangement.

Mrs. Willis Goddard was co-chairman of the tea committee which included Mrs. Sidney Cohen, Mrs. Alex Koobanoff, Mrs. Burt Sylvester, Mrs. Harold Lanterman and Mrs. Sherman Teeter. Miss Fannie Swartzwelder and Mrs. A. H. Mathieson poured. Homemade cookies decorated for Easter were served.

program, giving an interesting report on Honduras, in connection with Pan-American Month observed annually in April.

Attending the session were: Alberta Rochfort, president; Adele Banks, first vice president; Thelma Peet, second vice president; Joan Hu-chins, secretary; Helen Feigel, and Lillian Hinton, sergeant-at-arms; Edna Smith, Eleanor Staph, Ruth Cunningham, Doris Bartleson, Barthelia Barnes, Vera Newcomer, Helen Corey, Alberta March, Connie Edwards, and one junior member, Elaine Peet.

Mrs. Alice Lee, a member of the auxiliary who has been ill, was remembered, and Mrs. Susan E. DeGroat, who died in Wayne Memorial Hospital, Honesdale, Thursday morning, was honored.

April 10 was set as the date when the juniors will make tray covers for Easter for a Honesdale Convalescent Home, with the girls meeting at the home of Eleanor Staph.

The afghan on which members have been working has been completed and will be taken to Wilkes-Barre Veterans Hospital.

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

Well, now, that's more like it. When the March winds died down, the temperature was just right for an April evening's stroll, which made it all the more difficult to take everything at a dead run.

Even so, a lot of interesting information blew by of which I was able to catch only a snatch here and there. The home extension groups after weaving, caning, remodeling garments, and learning new recipes for their families had a whole day for themselves yesterday in New York.

There was quite a lot of speculation among themselves before they left about whether they'd come back all-oriental from a Japanese luncheon and Chinese supper, or whether they'd have the Japanese and Chinese waiters speaking with a Pennsylvania Dutch accent. There's a group I'd love to do New York with.

And if anybody wants to decorate my Easter baskets, I'll let it up to the Garden Club. Mac came back enthusiastic over their Easter egg tree with each egg a miniature world of its own.

I tried blowing out eggs one year. In theory you make a small hole with a needle in each end of the raw egg, blow gently at one end and the egg comes sliding out, yolk and all, out of the other.

In practice, it is most difficult to make a hole in an egg with a needle without also cracking the shell. Moreover omit the "gentle" from the directions because you turn purple while the egg keeps right on acting as if it were in the henhouse instead of intended for the Easter basket.

Also make sure that the family will stand for the number of omelets you'll have to make.

BANGOR HIGH School's Student Council will purchase a $3000 combined baseball-football scoreboard for Slater athletic teams.

The scoreboard is expected to be ready for use May 17 at Bangor Memorial Stadium, the home of the Slater grid and diamond representatives.

Frank Krystiniak, one of the key line figures in last season's East Stroudsburg State Teachers football team, is student teaching practically in his home territory.

Frank, a great guard in Eugene Martin's grid machine the last three campaigns, is taking his practice teaching course at Clarks Summit High, a Scranton suburban school. Krystiniak is a graduate of Scranton schools.

An important meeting of the Pocono Mountain Baseball League will be held Monday at the Lake Harmony Hotel.

League secretary John Wernett of Saylorsburg has urged that the secretary's portion of player contracts already signed must be submitted at the season. The final deadline for player contracts is to be turned in by May 31.

Glen Brook officials expect a banner turnout at the official opening of the golf course Saturday. Club officers and owners expect to leave no stone unturned in an attempt to make the 1957 golf season at Glen Brook one of the greatest in the organization's history.

Renovations costing in the neighborhood of $15,000 has given the place—dining room, Dutch room, ladies' lounge, etc.—a new look.

John Andrews, the clubs greenkeeper, also has the 18-hole course in tip-top shape and ready for the inaugural.

BOWLING TIDBITS—Jim Harmon Sr., fighting an uphill battle all the way, finally saw the surge payoff in the final day of bowling in the Industrial League, when he beat out Warren Paul by .022 of a pin to win the league's average championship.

Jim bagged a 611 match on the last day to edge Paul who was idle. Harmon's winning norm was 180.16, while Paul's was 180.14.

Bob Smith, who for a while led the average pack, ended up in third place with 178.6.

Other second half marks were: Harmon Sr., high single, individual, 278; Harmon, individual high triple, 637; high team single, East Stroudsburg Beverage, 969; and team high triple, Dunn's Tavern, 2712.

Eagles garnered their best match of the year in the Monroe Classic League as Joe Mayeyko's 632 and Sam Strunk's 601 led the barrage.

Square Bar, three point losers to the Birds, had Jake Nittel firing a 616.

Red Top Tavern posed a 1067 game as every team member notched a 200 or better tilt. Leading the parade was Steve Balick with 223, followed by Henry Baustein's 217; Angelo P. DeSanto's 213; Jim Harmon Sr.'s 211; and Wally Straub's 203.

Straub had a match of 612 and Baustein an even 600.

Two DeSanto's, Angelo P. and Angelo J., were key keepers in a victory by Johnnie's Inn in the Monroe County League last week.

Angelo J. rolled a 600 to take team honors, while Angelo P. trailed with 596.

Mountaineers In Tuneup At Chestnuthill

STROUDSBURG High will usher in a new baseball campaign today when the Mountaineers of Jerry Stulgaitis hit the trail to Brodheadville to face Chestnuthill in an exhibition contest.

The Mountaineers, short on

practice since pre-season workouts began three weeks ago because of the inclement weather, will use the independent tilt with the Hillers as a chance for Stulgaitis to get a good look at his 1957 proteges.

Stulgaitis will probably split his mound chores among lefthander Frank Radler and pitcher Jimmy Snyder, Tom Gross and Byron Weaver.

Stated to be behind the bat in his familiar catching role is co-captain Don Stopp.

Probable Infield

The Mountaineers' infield will probably be made up of Dick Cramsey at first base, Barry Tretheway at second, Ron Stopp, who is the team's other co-captain, at short, and Billy Schoonover at third.

In the outfield, Stulgaitis may swing with Dick Cramsey in left, Art Frey in center and John Hall in right.

The Mountaineers diamond boss is expected to make several changes in the outfield in order to find more punch.

First Of 12

For Stroudsburg it will be the first of a 12-game slate, including seven outings in the Lehigh Valley League.

Chestnuthill is an entry in the Monroe Scholastic League.

Tiger Jones Set For Bout On TV

SYRACUSE, N. Y., April 11 (P)—Two of boxing's most televised performers, Chico Vejar and Ralph (Tiger) Jones, collide here tomorrow night in a 10-round, nationally televised middleweight bout.

Fifth-ranked Jones has been installed as a 3-1 favorite to win his 31st video appearance. Vejar, the Stamford, Conn., dandy, will be making his 26th fight before the cameras.

A toe-to-toe slugger, Jones has a record of 43 victories, 17 losses and 3 draws. Vejar, 25, boasts a 72-8-2 mark, including 34 knockouts. Jones has stopped 11 opponents.

The fight will get the usual Friday night radio-television treatment (NBC TV, radio, 10 p. m. EST).

Brissie Set For Tour

WASHINGTON, April 11 (P)—Former major league pitcher Lou Brissie, now commissioner of baseball for the American Legion baseball league, is leaving May 1 for Australia to conduct baseball clinics and help develop the game among Australian youngsters. The two-month trip is part of the State Department's international educational exchange program.

Of the active members of the Brooklyn Dodgers, Pee Wee Reese has stolen the most bases in one season. He marked up 30 steals during 1952.

Cavaliers In Big Test At Easton

EAST Stroudsburg High will unveil its 1957 baseball team today when the Cavaliers travel to Easton to take on Eddie Snyder's Red Rovers at Cottingham Stadium.

East Stroudsburg Coach Jack Kist, hampered by bad weather which practically curtailed pre-season workouts, will throw a sparsely dotted veteran array at East Penn League nine.

Kist announced last night that Curt Ickman, newly elected co-captain and veteran southpaw, will get the starting pitching nod against Easton. Bob Stine, a sophomore, will handle the catching duties.

Eastburg Infield
At first base, Eastburg will go with sophomore Bob Herman; veteran Bob Kassner will man second base; Dale Metzgar, a comparative newcomer will be at short; and another comparative new regular, Corky Smith, will start at third.

In the outfield, Kist has Roger Ray, a speedy vet from last season, in right; Frank Lupin, also co-captain and another returnee, in left; and Paul Plattenburg in center.

Kist plans to also use possible one or two more hurlers. They

Other Cavaliers who may see duty are outfielder Helmut Gartner and Dan Patti, an infielder and Dick Wolslayer, a outfielder-pinchhitter.

Easton Nucleus

Easton's team is built around second baseman Dan Gelbert, son of former major league Charley Gelbert, and shortstop Terry Bartolet.

Other veterans on the Rover nine are first baseman Fred Tracy, pitcher-outfielder Dick Bentham and pitcher Chuck Oldt.

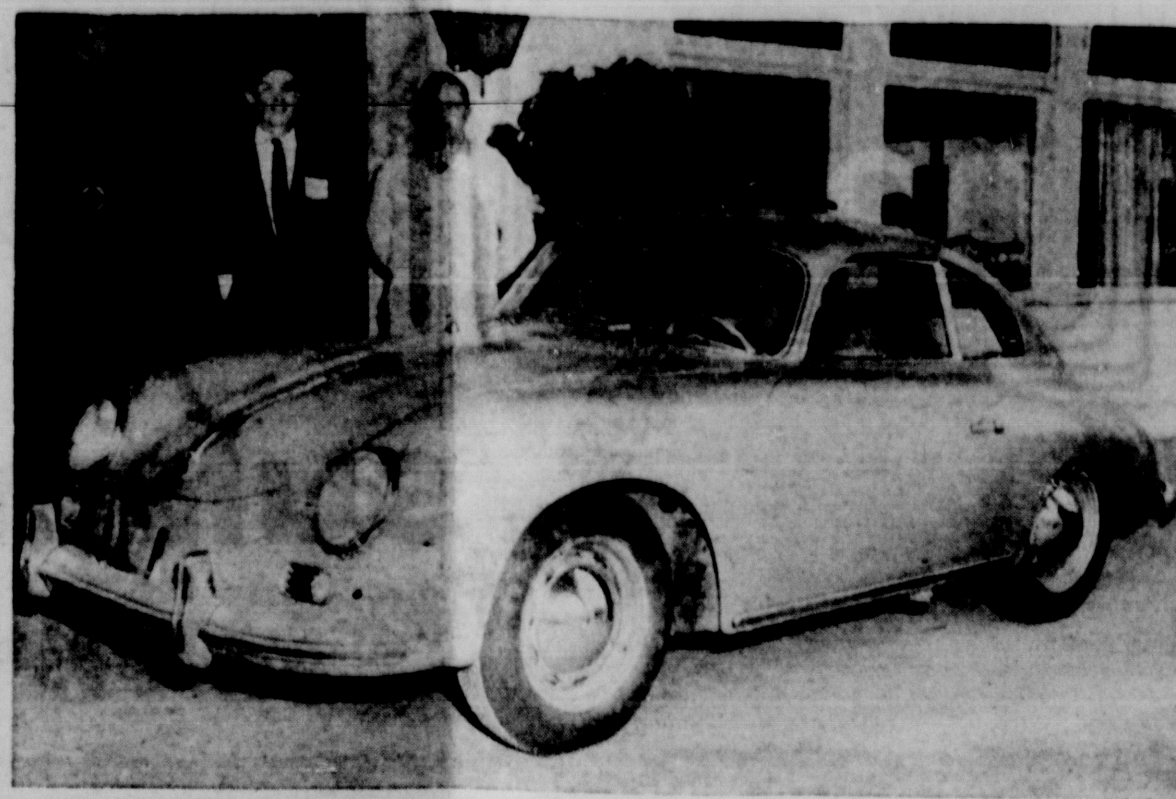

The Easton tilt will be the first of 12 for the Cavaliers this year, including eight in the Lehigh-Northampton League and one with arch-rival Stroudsburg in the season's finale May 24.

Good-Looking Rookie Crop Makes Yanks More 'Loaded'

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK, April 11 (P)—The word for the New York Yankees is "loaded." Casey Stengel had the best crop of youngsters in Florida and he heads into the American League race with a well-balanced ball club made up of two-way players.

Although the Yanks lost to their Richmond farm club today after barely struggling past two other minor league teams on the way home, it is the general impression that they can't miss when the bell rings for the regular season. Only injuries to key men like Mickey Mantle or Yogi Berra could change the picture.

Two or Three-Way
While other clubs must settle for a man who can handle one position, Stengel demands the two-way or three-way ballplayer. An infielder must be ready to shift to the outfield and an outfielder must be prepared to catch or play shortstop.

Just take a look at the Yankee lineup that probably will open the season. Everybody can handle two jobs.

Manhart and Pat Uridel comprise the planning committee. League action ended this week with the playoffs and will resume in September. A re-organization meeting is planned for August when new officers will be elected and teams named.

A handicap tournament for Newfoundland and Barrett women is being organized by Arch Dally, of the Barrett Bowling Center, with Newfoundland women scheduled to play at 9 p. m. on April 22.

Braves Same, But Different

MILWAUKEE, April 11 (P)—The Milwaukee Braves face a "this is the year" pennant race this season with the same lineup that blew the flag a year ago, but there's a difference.

Or, put another way, there had better be.

Outside of owner Lou Perini, no one of authority on the club predicted the Braves would win the National League race a year ago. Perini still hasn't gotten over the bitter disappointment of the Braves' second place finish, their third in four years here. They wound up third in 1954.

Haney Confident

But this season, Manager Fred Haney, who took over for the Perini-deposed Charlie Grimm last June, has openly predicted the club will win the elusive pennant. Several of his veteran hands, like Warren Spahn, Johnny Logan, Eddie Mathews, Joe Adcock and Danny O'Connell, agree with him.

They are not shouting their opinion from the rooftops, just quietly confident that "this is the year."

Haney knows full well he won't be around if the Braves don't win.

Sister Of Stroudsburg Resident To Retire As Mount Holyoke College Professor In June

(Special to The Daily Record)
SOUTH HADLEY, Mass., April 11—Forty-seven years of study, teaching and research at Mount Holyoke College lie behind Miss A. Elizabeth Adams, professor of zoology, who will retire in June.

Miss A. Elizabeth Adams

Miss Adams, who graduated from Mount Holyoke in 1914, was born in Delaware, N. J., and is the sister of Mrs. Charles S. Flagler, 46 North 6 St., Stroudsburg.

As an undergraduate she was the first winner of the Sarah Streeter Cup, given annually to the senior with the best posture and health record.

Returning to the college the next fall, Miss Adams became successively assistant, instructor and associate professor. Since 1928 she has been full professor, serving from 1947 to 1953 as chairman of the zoology department. During time out from her teaching duties she earned an M. A. from Columbia and a Ph. D. from Yale, where she held an honorary fellowship.

Miss Adams' research in embryology and endocrinology has brought her a number of grants, including a $3,000 award from the Rockefeller Foundation in 1937. Others have come from the National Academy of Sciences, National Society of the Sigma Xi and National Research Council.

Studying the internal secretions of animals such as the newt, lizard, chick embryo and mouse, Miss Adams and her students have investigated the functions and interrelationships of the endocrine glands, which are similar to those of human beings. Recently she has been interested in the effects of antithyroid drugs which create a hypothyroid state in the animal.

On leave of absence in 1936, Miss Adams made an extensive survey of college and university departments specializing in endocrine investigations, and studied for a time at Johns Hopkins University. Her recent sabbatical leaves have been spent in writing, research and travel; during the first semester of 1953-54 she visited research institutes and departments of zoology and anatomy in Great Britain and Sweden.

In addition to "Studies in Experimental Zoology," first published in 1936 and now in its third edition, Miss Adams is the author of articles on experimental embryology and endocrinology in scientific journals. A Fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and of the New York Academy of Sciences, she is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Sigma Xi and several professional organizations. She is on the executive committee of the American Association of Anatomists, and has served on the fellowship awards committee of the American Association of University Women for the past six years and on the National Science Foundation committee on postdoctoral fellowships in January of this year.

After her retirement in June, Miss Adams expects to continue her research, which is presently concerned with attempting to produce hyperthyroidism in chick embryos by injections of thyroxine. A veteran traveler in Great Britain, Europe and South America, she looks forward to the possibility of further "globe-trotting" with Dr. Ann Morgan, professor emerita of zoology, with whom she lives at 72 Woodbridge Terrace, South Hadley.

Also retiring will be Roswell Gray Ham, president of Mount Holyoke; Miss Helen Patch, professor of French; Miss Florence Clement, publication editor; Mrs. Mary C. Stephenson, associate professor of psychology and education and Harrison Potter, associate professor of music. Miss Patch and Miss Clement are college classmates of Miss Adams.

The Colgate Thirteen

Colgate Group To Appear At Manor

HAMILTON, N. Y. — Since its formation in 1942, The Colgate Thirteen have gained a reputation from Los Angeles to New York to Jamaica as "America's Most Unique Collegiate Singing Group."

Now on their traditional spring tour, these famed undergraduate songsters from Colgate University will appear at the Pocono Manor Inn this weekend for several delightful concerts including college songs, spirituals, popular and novelty numbers and barbershop ballads.

Led by Douglas Wilson, a senior from Garden City, N. Y., the Thirteen's distinctive blending of voices, its fine selection of songs, and its spontaneity have enabled it to make new friends wherever it goes. With a history that is almost phenomenal for a singing group of its age, The Colgate Thirteen has become a tradition for excellence in unusual entertainment in song. Requests for repeat engagements confirm the ability of the group to thrill audiences with the sheer pleasure of songs presented in the "Thirteen Manner." Last year, the group's banner season, it gave 115 concerts, toured 14,000 miles, and sang for an estimated audience of over 50 million people.

Travel

The group has traveled throughout the East, South, Mid-West, Far West and in Jamaica, B.W.I., performing before audiences ranging from high school students to business organizations, civic groups, country clubs, resorts, hotels and alumni groups. Their appearances on radio and television, coupled with the national interest appeal of their name, have helped the Thirteen to achieve international fame.

After its appearance at Pocono Manor Inn, The Thirteen will appear at the Marlborough-Blenheim Hotel in Atlantic City, Sunday through Tuesday, The Jamestown, Va. Festival, April 17, and the Cavalier Club, Virginia Beach, Virginia, April 18-22.

Men who will make the tour include Douglas Wilson, the leader, of Garden City; John Van Breda, assistant leader, of Bronxville; Roger D. Kincaide, Shaker Heights, Ohio; L. Graham Best Jr., Larchmont; Norman Yetman, Prescott, Arizona; Richard K. Harder, Andover; Michael P. Brooks, Denver, Colo.; and Howard Lee, Buffalo, also, William T. Robinson, Lee Center; William M. O'Hare, Lowell; Warren C. Hutchins, Swampscott, Mass.; Marti Tammara, Baltimore, Md.; Donald W. Mort II, Waynesboro, Pa.; and Thomas C. Cooper, business manager of Shaker Heights, Ohio.

Ohio Girl Jokes With Elizabeth

PARIS, April 11 (AP)—An Ohio girl broke all rules of royal etiquette today and breezily struck up a conversation with Queen Elizabeth II.

She was Maj. Ann Duffy of Cleveland, Ohio, stationed here with the U. S. Air Force.

The major, smart in her blue uniform, was at the Standard Athletic Club in suburban Meudon when the Queen inspected it during her state visit to Paris.

Smile
"You're certainly lucky. Your Majesty," said Maj. Duffy with a smile, "to have such wonderful weather. They're calling it 'Queen's weather' here and they say you have it at home whenever you appear. Is that true?"

Now the rule book says no one speaks to the Queen until she speaks to them and no one ever, ever asks the Queen a question.

But the Queen didn't appear bothered.

Smiling and with high good humor she replied, "Oh, no, I'm not always that lucky."

"Now, tell me what you do here?"

"Oh," said Maj. Duffy, "I help people have a good time."

The Queen laughed.

Seventh-Day Adventists To Observe Lord's Instructions

STROUDSBURG SEVENTH-DAY Adventists will re-enact instructions laid down by their Lord some 1900 years ago tomorrow at the local church, West Main St.

At the special 9:15 a.m. services, members of the church will participate in the ancient Ordinance of Humility enjoined by Christ following the Last Supper. This ordinance will be followed by the regular Christian Communion.

In the Ordinance of Humility members of the church will engage in the ceremonial washing of one another's feet, an act symbolic of the humility necessary to the Christian life.

Communion

Unfermented grape juice and unleavened bread, symbols of the body and blood of Christ, will be taken in the Communion service which members will attend following the Ordinance of Humility. Assisting Pastor William R. Bornstein in this ceremony will be the lay elders of the church, Clifford K. Okuno and Thomas Miller.

A practice of other major religious denominations at one time, the special Saturday services are a "rededication by individual church members to their baptismal vows," Pastor Bornstein said.

The service is observed in Seventh-Day Adventist churches four times a year, according to Pastor Bornstein.

Curfew Lifted

SANTIAGO, Chile, April 11 (AP)—A curfew, imposed nine days ago after bloody rioting against spiraling prices, was lifted in Santiago today. Armed patrols still enforced a state of siege, proclaimed after at least 40 persons were killed and hundreds injured. The curfew was abolished two days ago in Valparaiso, the only other city where it was imposed.

Only Choice Open

CAMDEN, N. J., April 11 (AP)—The former chairman of the board of U. S. Steel Corp., said tonight that "so long as the Soviet bloc continues to seek the enslavement of the free world, we have no choice but to continue to help build collective strength and to help pay for it."

The Way of The Cross

Soldier, Simon, Priest In Crowd Observe As Jesus Falls Second Of Eight Years

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the seventh chapter of a 11-part Easter season series to be written by Leonard Pandolph. The series is entitled "The Way of the Cross." It will appear each day between this date and Easter.

Chapter Seven ROMAN SOLDIER

THIS BECOMES more and more like a battle. In my mind just now I saw this man as an army, once proud and enormous in its numbers but at this moment, beaten and badly-clothed, bleeding to death in a valley surrounded by the enemy.

Jerusalem is a beautiful city. But today it has grown filthy and rotten in the sun, wretched and bloated as a corpse left in the desert. It will take a strong wind to blow away the putrid smell. This torture leaves in the air. The streets are filled with it and the jabbering of human vultures who follow us, swarming around the carpenter when he falls, pecking at his robes.

I'll never be sickened by war again. There is something infinitely clean and beautiful about battle after this. In war, at least, a man dies in his own time, without taunting. No one hounds his heels or snarls his name. No one holds him back from death so a mob can enjoy his dying.

SIMON
What a strange thing! Since I've been forced to help this man, I have become a part of his death. All around me the mad dogs shriek, snapping at my arms and legs. There's no interest in justice here. These priests want to make an example of a Nazarene carpenter that no one will ever forget. They want the people to remember the sight of this man crumpling down under the weight of a cross, breaking the skin of his body on the rock when he falls as he does now.

This carpenter is a warning for all men in Jerusalem. Play the game our way, say what we would have you say, preach as we preach—or have your body mutilated on the streets and your tongue stilled forever.

Yet this day may get out of control. They may carry the act too far and torture him too much. No one will forget a day like this. It may grow in the minds of some men and strengthen them as it has made me strong. I need the new strength now. For the first time in my life I am walking a road chosen by someone else. And I have been forced to be strong because I am needed by another man.

Even now, as I bend down to help him to his feet, it is myself I lift up from the bloody dust around him.

I am a poor man who has been desolate in prayer. But God! Dear God! Help me to make other men see that in his death they also die; that as they kill this man they still must murder me.

A PRIEST
I do not like the way this is going! This man will not be beaten! I think Caiaphas may have acted unwisely. We could have got the carpenter some other way.

Kidnaping is quiet and clean. He could have been killed silently somewhere outside the city; no one would have been the wiser. We could have left him lying in the desert for the animals to ravage, tearing out his heart and calling the wild birds down to swoop upon his flesh.

But no! The whole thing had to be done according to the rules. Let the people see that "justice" has been done, he said. No one will see the mockery. But what if they do?

I like it less and less. Even after this man dies, they will remember him because he suffered in their doorways. These people here beside me hate him bitterly. Yet he is also strongly loved.

Hate withers away in the storm of its own passion. But the love this man inspires in the few who follow him is like a quiet flame in a black room.

And one flame has more power than all our fearful thunder.

Paradise Valley Native Dies In Bethlehem

MRS. MINNIE M. Stirk, 65, a native of Paradise Valley, died unexpectedly of a heart attack Wednesday afternoon at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Raymond R. Myers, of Bethlehem.

Mrs. Stirk and her husband, Preston C. Stirk, lived at 618 Christian St., Bethlehem.

She was a daughter of the late Abraham and Martha Wagner Dauber, of Paradise Valley, and had lived in the Swiftwater section of Monroe County until moving to Bethlehem about 40 years ago.

She was a member of the First Evangelical and Reformed Church, Bethlehem; of the Order of Eastern Star and a charter member of the Cedar Club Auxiliary, also of Bethlehem.

Surviving besides her husband and daughter, Hilma, wife of Dr. Myers, associate professor of chemistry at Lehigh University, are a sister, Ruth, wife of William Althouse, Lansdale, and two grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 2 p. m. at Pearson's Funeral Home, 529 Wyandotte St., Bethlehem, in charge of Rev. Harry J. Colver. Burial will be in Memorial Park Cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home Sunday night.

Joseph Widmer In Hospital

JOSEPH N. Widmer Sr., East Stroudsburg RD 2, has entered the University of Pennsylvania Hospital, Philadelphia, to undergo a major operation.

Widmer is caretaker of Hiawatha Rod and Gun Club. Friends may send cards to him at this address: Room 110, Ward M, University of Pennsylvania Hospital, 34th and Spruce Sts., Philadelphia.

Special Palm Sunday Service Schedule For St. Matthew's

SPECIAL LITURGICAL service of Palm Sunday will be conducted at 11:30 a. m. Sunday at St. Matthew's Roman Catholic Church. Palm Sunday services will be held at regular times at St. Luke's and St. John's Churches. The blessing of palms and the procession of palms will be held at St. Matthew's only, according to Rev. Harold G. Durkin, pastor of St. Matthew's parish.

Formation of those taking part in the procession will take place at 11:15 a. m. in the auditorium of St. Matthew's Parochial School. Palm Sunday commemorates the triumphal entry of Christ into Jerusalem. The service is divided into two sections—the Procession with its joyful tributes to Jesus riding through the welcoming crowds into the city and the Mass in which all of the chants are related to the agony of Christ's Passion.

Early Days

In early days the Procession was observed at the scene of the original entry of Christ into the city. After the Gospel narrative of this part in the final days of Jesus had been read, a bishop rode on a donkey through crowds carrying palms and singing anthems to the church of the Resurrection on the summit of the Mount of Olives.

In the ninth century the rite of the Blessing of the Palms became a part of the ritual. The palm branches signify Jesus' triumphs over the prince of death and the olive branches are symbolic of the coming of spiritual union.

Palm Sunday is a day of conflicting emotions, embodying both the great joy of Christ's life and the anguish of his death among men.

Ferdinand Pugh, Blind Cane Weaver, Dies At Age 85 After Illness Of Eight eYars

HE WAS an 85-year-old man who had lived in darkness for 72 years.

Yesterday the world's final darkness closed in on Ferdinand Pugh who lost both his eyes and went on to live a useful life filled with work he loved.

The last dark door opened for him at 12:10 p. m. in a room in General Hospital. He had been a patient there for seven weeks. But the darkness began for Ferdinand Pugh at the age of 13. The young boy was seated at the home of his parents on Brown St. in East Stroudsburg.

Move Made To Aid Research

LAUSANNE, Switzerland, April 11 (AP)—The Universal Postal Union Executive Committee proposes to let laboratories and research stations send dangerous bacteria specimens by international mail to aid medical research.

The decision will be by the Universal Postal Congress in Ottawa next August. Most countries now bar such items.

Treasury Balance

WASHINGTON, April 11 (AP)—The cash position of the treasury April 8: Balance, $5,625,370,337.38; deposits, $58,270,325,964.87; withdrawals, $60,917,945,312.80; total debit, $-5274,687,687,629.53; gold assets, $22,505,958,697.18. X—Includes $449,622,876.96 debt not subject to statutory limit.

Like most small boys of that age in that time, he was occupied with a small job. He was cleaning tar off the blade of a knife he had been using.

As he pressed down on the knife its metal blade snapped. A piece of the blade flew upward and lodged in one of his eyes.

His niece, Mrs. Mabel Henry, with whom he had lived the past 35 years, recalls being told that her uncle was taken to a hospital where an operation was performed for removal of one eye. A few weeks later the second eye was also removed by surgery.

Left in total darkness, Ferdinand Pugh was sent to a school for the blind in Philadelphia. It was here that he learned the trade he was to follow as long as his fingers could perform the intricacies of weaving strips of cane together for the bottoms and backs of chairs.

He came back to East Stroudsburg and began a new life in the home where he had lived before. A small shop was set up for him. His business grew steadily and he was occupied in it most of each day.

As he grew older he learned to "get around" outside his home. His figure became familiar on the sidewalks near his home. When his father and mother, William and Harriet Staples Pugh, died he stayed on Brown St. For the past 35 years he had lived with the Henrys.

Mr. Pugh continued to work at his trade actively until eight years ago. The man who could not be conquered by darkness finally was forced to stop his work. He suffered a stroke and lost much of the use of his hands and arms, his fingers were deformed to the delicate touch needed for a blind man weaving.

A year ago he became ill again. Then, seven weeks ago, he was taken to General Hospital suffering from pneumonia and the effects of his advanced age.

For Pugh, his niece recalls, there was another tragedy in life. It came in August, 1955, when flood waters from Brodheads Creek roared through the Brown St. section and forced him from the home he had known for so many years.

The Henrys found a new apartment at 312 Main St. in Stroudsburg, taking their uncle with them. He adjusted to the new surroundings well, Mrs. Henry said, until he began to become ill again.

Funeral services for Mr. Pugh will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. in Lanterman funeral home. Rev. P. N. Wohlson will officiate. Interment will be made in Stroudsburg cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home today from 7 to 9 p. m.

78 Students Take Part In Festival

NEWFOUNDLAND — Seventy-eight high schools in northeastern Pennsylvania presented a concert under the direction of Ferdinand Liva, guest conductor, as a climax to a three-day District Orchestra Festival at Greene-Dreher-Sterling Joint High School.

More than 400 persons attended the community concert which was the closing activity of the event.

The orchestra presented Rosamunde (Overture), Schubert; Theme and Variations, Wilder; Symphony Number Five, First Movement, Allegro con brio, Beethoven; Eine Kleine Nacht Music, Mozart; Emperor Waltz, Strauss; Crinoline and Old Lace, Gould; and Model Railway, Williams.

A banquet preceded the final concert, with these special guests joining the orchestra members and their music supervisors: Ferdinand Liva, guest conductor; Mrs. Liva; H. B. Ammerman, Wayne County Superintendent of Schools; Assistant Superintendent Paul Ryder; Mr. and Mrs. John Strupcowski; Supervising Principal and Mrs. Leland Cramer; Homer Gilpin, president of the Greene-Dreher-Sterling Joint School Board; Numa Snyder, president of the Northeast District, Pennsylvania Music Educators Association; and William Roberts, president of the PMEA.

Guests

The musicians were the guests of various residents in the community. Transportation between the guest home and the school for rehearsals was provided by volunteer drivers.

John Strupcowski, music supervisor of the host school, was in charge of the festival.

A student concert was presented for pupils of GDS and visiting students from Hawley, Lake Ariel, and Barrett Township schools. After the concert, an entertainment by Ed Patterson, a magician and cartoonist, was featured.

A dance was held for the musicians and the students of GDS, with music furnished without charge by Local 120 of the American Federation of Musicians of which Madea Cetta is president.

Orchestra personnel received breakfasts at the guest homes, and lunch and dinner in the school cafeteria. Mrs. Elsie Simon, Mrs. Myrtle Waltz, and Mrs. Thelma Peet were in charge of the cafeteria.

Committee Reports On Highways

NEWFOUNDLAND — Highway conditions in this area interested Newfoundland Rotarians this week as a committee report on road conditions in several "trouble spots" was heard.

LeRoy Guccini and Tom Gange, who with Dr. A. V. Lapcho have been serving as a committee investigating the possibility of improvement of road conditions, reported that their trip to Harrisburg gave them the impression that improvement of a six-mile stretch of highway between Angels and Gouldsboro, Route 507, is "fairly certain."

However, they noted that prospects are dim on improvement of Routes 196 and 490 between Mount Pocono and Lake Wallenpaupack, and they felt that only necessary repairs will be made to these roads.

Dr. Frank Uridel, who presided at the meeting, was welcomed back after an absence of six weeks. Willis Gilpin was program chairman, reporting on the band shell project on which the Rotary Club is currently working.

Possibility

Gilpin discussed the possibility of beginning work on the shell this Spring, but noted the problem of re-routing a small stream in the area. The stream will be bridged near the Legion Home by the State, it was pointed out.

There will be no business meeting of the Rotary Club on Monday. Representatives of the local unit will attend sessions of the annual District Conference of Rotary International scheduled for today, tomorrow and Sunday at Pocono Manor.

LeRoy Guccini will be program chairman for the April 22 sessions at Green's Restaurant.

M. W. Baumgartner, a member of the Mount Pocono Rotary Club, was a guest at the session.

The move was the first important one made by the government appointed Feb. 25 to combat inflation and bring some order to a chaotic economic situation.

In primitive Samoa the natives built a double canoe which was capable of carrying 500 people. The Norsemen's famous long boats could carry only about 200.
